

Artist Statement:

As an international student who currently lives in my home country, South Korea, it is heartbreaking to see the Asian community in the United States getting hurt. While staying in Korea, I have seen beautiful scenery and moments in my daily life. They were peaceful and beautiful. People are leading a peaceful life in their own country, respecting each other and at the same time respected by others. We as human beings deserve such respect no matter where we are. Any kind of hatred must be stopped. Through the quiet and peaceful scene I captured in Seoul Korea, I want to convey the message that we should stop hatred and strive for a tranquil life in harmony with people from different backgrounds.
