

Artist statement:

There are many Asian groups in society with many separate languages. Therefore, before making the design, choosing which language to embrace all of them was important.

Sign language can encompass broader groups and give messages to many different people living in our society. Softly, but at the same time, it can be stronger than just a few words.

This visual work reminds people that we should unite together and show power by expressing and speaking out a message against hatred and unity against the vice that threatens our community and society's solidarity. Moreover, I hope this piece encourages people who are afraid to speak up and join the front line to participate in the movement by speaking and spreading the small message.
