

Artist Statement:

This illustration is mainly about Asian people's lives, based on "The Joy Luck Club," which tells the story of four Chinese women who come to America and raise their American-born children. This illustration chooses one of the family's stories in this book. The story is actually about the conflict and reconciliation between the Chinese culture and American culture. This is also the reason why I chose this illustration. I want people to know more about Asian culture and the American-born Chinese people's lives. I think understanding these two different cultures and their lives could lower the prejudice between other races. Let's stop Asian hate.
